

Glue Brush Tip

I like to use a small acid brush to apply glue to my projects. Problem is that I never know what to do with my brush between applying coats. It always seems to end up on my workbench, leaving a sticky mess.

To solve this problem, I converted a standard-size baby jar lid into a brush holder. The lid keeps my brush off the bench surface while I'm working.

And when I'm finished, I simply leave the brush in the lid and screw it back onto the jar. It's a great way to store the glue until it's time for my next project.

